

Call for papers to the International Congress
Women and Writing in the Roman West
Faculdade de Letras da Universidade de Lisboa
21st & 22nd November 2024

Co-organized by the Centre of Archaeology of the University of Lisbon and the University of Zaragoza, the congress aims to analyse the female use of writing and the participation of women in the different manifestations of the written culture of the Roman West from a multidisciplinary approach. The congress is open to 20-minutes communication about the following topics:

- Epigraphy and female self-representation
- Writing and women in iconography
- Woman and poetry: the carmina latina epigraphica
- Female literacy in Rome and the provinces
- Female literacy in Paleo-European epigraphic cultures
- Comparative studies with other contemporary spaces

We invite those interested in participating to send a proposal (no more than 300 words) together with a short biographical note to womenandwritingcongress@gmail.com before May 1st, 2024. We accept proposals in English, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, French, and German. More information here.
